TO ENLARGE THE STATE FAIRGROUNDS

Columbus, March 9.—Rural members of the house of representatives, members of the Corn Stalk club, unanimously favor Secretary of Agriculture Shaw's proposal that the state buy ninety acres of land and enlarge the state fairgrounds here, to the east. The land can be bought for about $350,000.

FEDERAL RESERVE HEAD MAY RETAIN PLACE

William P. G. Harding, of Alabama, governor of the federal reserve board, is one Democrat likely to remain in office indefinitely, according to reports from Washington. It is said that President Harding and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon admire the way Governor Harding has handled financial affairs and desire him to remain in office as long as he conveniently can. Much satisfaction was expressed in the capital because of the new president's attitude, as it indicated that the federal reserve system is to be kept out of politics.

REPORT MADE ON TAX PLANS

Scheme To Abolish Uniform Rule in Ohio.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF TAX COMMITTEE

Members of Committee Seek a Change in Constitution of Buckeye State.

Columbus, March 9.—Recommendations that the state constitution be ammended so as to abolish the uniform rule in taxation and to provide for income and inheritance taxes and for a fifteen-mill tax limit in municipalities and for a twelve-mill limit outside of municipal corporations, are contained in the report submitted to Governor Davis by his citizens' taxation committee.

The committee has completed its hearings relative to suggestions for a permanent taxation program, which the state legislature will be asked to enact into law.

The proposed constitutional amendment provides, however, that laws may be passed authorizing additional tax rates to be levied in any taxing district, for specific purposes and periods, upon the approval of a majority of those voting at a general election in such district and that no state tax in excess of one mill shall be levied on property, according to value.

The committee would exempt public and charitable property and household goods, up to $500.

It is proposed that the constitutional amendment become effective January 1, next, if adopted in November and that the following be exempted from the tax-rate limitations:

Sinking fund levies for 1913 flood emergency bonds and other similar bonds now outstanding, local road levies for state highway improvement contribution, so far as anticipated by outstanding bonds, and levies, to meet soldiers' bonus bonds, if they should be approved in November.

If adopted, the proposed constitutional amendment, the committee declared, would do away with the greater part of the state tax levy, thereby avoiding a source of friction between the taxing districts; compel an income tax; make available to the legislature many sources of revenue which it has been found impossible to reach for taxation under the uniform rule and afford an opportunity for a taxing system which can be enforced.

MESSAGE SENT SENATE TODAY

President Urges Action on Colombian Treaty.

SENATE GOES INTO EXECUTIVE SESSION

Without Making Contents of the Document Public.

Lodge Expects Prompt Action on the Treaty—Some Opposition to Pact Developed by Borah and Others.

Washington, March 9.—Ratification of the Colombian treaty was strongly urged by President Harding, in a special message to the senate, today.

Beyond disclosing this fact, Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, Republican leader and chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, in charge of the treaty, declined to discuss the president's message.

The message was said to have been short and to the point.

Senator Lodge said the message would not be made public today.

Although President Harding requested in his message that the treaty be taken up "at once," immediate consideration of it was blocked by Senators Johnson, of California and Borah, of Idaho, Republicans, opposed to its ratification.

Senator Johnson demanded that the treaty be considered in open executive session.

Senator Lodge, in replying to Johnson, asked that he at least be permitted to address the senate on the treaty in closed executive session, "as there were matters relating to it" which he did not think should be made public at this time.

Senator Johnson offered no objection to Senator Lodge's proposal

Action Sought.

Washington, March 9.—President Harding sent to the senate this afternoon, a message urging immediate action on the Colombian treaty.

Without opening the message in open session, the senate went into executive session. The White House refused to make the message public, stating that it was an executive document dealing with a treaty which must be made public by the senate.

Storm warnings were visible in the senate, over the disputed Colombian treaty. Opposition to its ratification by Senators Borah, of Idaho; Kellogg, of Minnesota, and other Republicans, was developing rapidly.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, Republican leader and chairman of the foreign-relations committee, indicated the situation hinged upon the special message regarding the treaty President Harding sent the senate.

Lodge would not discuss the situation, except to state clearly he expected the treaty to be ratified at the present special session of the senate, if the president so desired.

Nominations.

Washington, March 9.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate, this afternoon:

To be brigadier general, medical section, officers' reserve corps: U. S. army, Charles E. Sawyer, of Ohio.

To be assistant secretaries of the treasury, S. Parker Gilbert, Jr., of Bloomfield, New Jersey; Ewing Laporte, of St. Louis, Missouri, and Nicholas Kelly, of New York, all reappointments.

An Ambassador.

Washington, March 9.—President Harding probably will name an ambassador to Great Britain, within a few days, it was learned here today.

No word has come from the White House as to the president's choice, but indications point to the selection of George Harvey, editor and publicist, of New York. It is reported that Harvey has been offered the post and has agreed to accept it.

President Harding is anxious to fill the post as quickly as possible, in view of the departure from England, this week, of Ambassador John W. Davis, whose resignation already has been received.

Story Behind a Marriage in the Windy City.

Chicago, March 9.—Winston Phillips, nineteen, Louisville, Kentucky is at a downtown hotel with his bride of five days, Mrs. Luella Gaines Phillips, forty-three. And down in Kentucky's metropolis, there is a slip of a girl, her daughter, nursing a sore heart. For Winston wooed the daughter, but he wed the mother.

Mrs. Phillips is the widow of a wealthy civil engineer.

NO HOSTILITY IN EVIDENCE

Allied Troops Are Not Treated as Invaders.

OCCUPIED CITIES MOVING QUIETLY

Germans Go About Their Business as Usual.

Some Comment on the Fact That No Americans Appear Among the Allied Forces of Occupation as Yet.

French Military Headquarters, Neuss, Germany, March 9.—"Those fellows have excellent uniforms," remarked a German ex-soldier, with interest, as he gazed upon a patrol of French soldiers swinging through the streets of the occupied city of Dusseldorf.

The German's companion, who had also seen service in the great war, eyed the French critically and replied:

"Fine equipment, too; ready for anything."

Then the two Germans apparently forgot all about the French army of occupation and went about their personal affairs.

"Business as usual," seemed to be the note of all the Germans not only across the Rhine in Dusseldorf, but in the other two occupied cities in the Ruhr district—Duisburg and Ruhrort.

Crowds of German men, women and children greeted the British, French and Belgian troops everywhere. The allied troops were discussed more like visitors than invaders.

"There are no Americans among them," remarked a German in Dusseldorf, after viewing the various contingents of soldiers. This was said in a matter-of-fact way, with no trace of hostility against the allied troops already on the scene.

Children Interested.

The German children were particularly interested in the newcomers. They crept up close to the soldiers, inspecting them and their equipment with round-eyed interest. But they scampered away when the soldiers took notice of them. After a time gifts of chocolate began to pass into small grimy hands and it looked as though an entente cordiale was about to be established with the younger generation.

During the evening, the occupation of the three German cities had "become old stuff" and the townspeople paid no attention to the soldiers they encountered in stores on shopping tours.

There are between 3,000 and 4,000 allied troops in Dusseldorf. The original contingents were substantially reinforced.

The French, British and Belgian sentries paced the streets during the night and stood guard on the bridges.

General Degoutte, commander of the French army of occupation, who visited Dusseldorf in company with General Goucher, was apparently well satisfied with everything he found there.

The Reichswehr, at Dusseldorf, were taken by surprise by the quickness of the allied advance.

GERMANY TO ASSUME DEBTS OF ALLIES

London, March 9.—Herr Rathenau, head of the German General Electric company, and other of the experts advising the German indemnity commission, have made the suggestion that the reparation tangle be straightened out upon the basis that Germany assumes all of the allied debts to the United States, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Berlin, today.

PREMIER DATO ASSASSINATED

Spanish Leader Shot to Death by Communists.

IS FOLLOWED FROM CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES

And Slain in Motor Car on His Way Home.

Killers' Notched Bullets Used To Make Them Expand and Insure Fatal Wounds—The Slayers Make Escape.

Madrid, Spain, March 9.—The three assassins who killed Premier Eduardo Dato, of Spain, as he was on his way home from the chamber of deputies, last night, were said by the police, today, to be Communists.

Medical examination of the body showed that the cartridges used by the assassins had been notched on the end with a knife, so that they would expand and make death certain. The assassins had been waiting for Senor Dato. When he entered his motor car, they followed on bicycles. Suddenly the three men rode up close and began firing from pistols. Twenty-seven shots were fired and the premier received three wounds, any one of which would have been fatal.

The chauffeur, who was badly wounded during the fusillade, drove the car to a hospital, but M. Dato was dead upon arrival there.

The police were unable to get any definite trace of the three men, who escaped upon their bicycles.

Dato was recognized as one of the most conservative of the conservatives in Spain. He became leader of the Liberal-Conservative party, the strongest political group in both houses. Never a friend of the working classes and opposed to all reforms, Dato acquired the height of his strength in August, 1917, when he suppressed with the utmost energy the workers' movement.

Are In Session.

Dayton, March 9.—With representatives from all over the state and several from a distance, the Ohio subdividers and planters are in session here, today. Among the speakers are C. F. Kettering, Dayton; K. H. Rohm, Toledo; F. D. Stout, Dayton; William Pfahm, Cleveland and K. H. Allen, Dayton.

HOME AFFAIRS TO COME FIRST

To Get Attention of Administration Without Delay.

EUROPEAN MATTERS CAN WAIT FOR TIME

President Would Have American House in Order.

Indicated New Administration Will Proceed with Caution in Untangling Foreign Relations as Now Existing.

Washington, March 9.—There were unmistakable signs, today, that the new administration is going to proceed slowly and with extreme caution in straightening out the kinks in our European relations.

The allied occupation of German territory and the tide of revolution which for the first time in three years bids fair to engulf soviet Russia, are two situations that are being closely watched by the administration. But they are being scrutinized more against the time when American policies must be formulated than with any idea of taking steps immediately.

In the five days that he has been in the White House, President Harding has conferred with scores of men high in public and business life, but the overwhelming burden of his talk has concerned conditions at home and not abroad. With only two men—Secretary of State Hughes and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge—has he discussed international affairs and even with these the conversation is described as "general" in character.

Those in confidence of the new president said, today, that this was in keeping with the promise often made by Senator Harding during the campaign—that if elected, he would adopt a policy of putting our own house in order first—before attempting to cross either the Atlantic or the Pacific.

The Panama-Costa Rica controversy, so far as is known, is the only international issue to which the new administration has given serious attention and this is so close to home that it is considered practically a domestic issue.

Will Be Delayed.

President Harding is more or less committed to the recall of American troops from the Rhine, so soon as that is found practicable. During the campaign, he frequently asserted that American troops "had no business" there, and "they should be home." The allied advance into German territory, however, has altered the aspect of this problem materially, and if there has been any intention on the part of the new administration of immediately returning these troops, it is now considered virtually certain that such intention will not be carried out, for the present at least.

A call for the return of the troops now might result in embarrassing England, France and Belgium, and certainly would be construed, in Germany, as widening the crack which admittedly exists between the policies of this government and the allies.

The same situation exists, to a great extent, in the proposed passage of the Knox resolution declaring a state of peace with Germany. Following the example of their candidate, Republican speakers, during the campaign, told their audiences that if the Republican ticket was elected there would be peace with Germany "as a Republican congress could pass such a measure for a Republican executive to sign."

Whether this resolution will be presented and urged to immediate passage when the new congress assembles, early in April, appeared problematical, today.

In any event, there is going to be no hurry in getting at the European problem. Taxation and tariff and other domestic affairs are going to occupy the attention of the new administration almost exclusively at first, regardless of European matters.

A Busy Day.

Washington, March 9.—President Harding passed another busy day, today, and he was at his desk before 8:30.

The president's appointments were as follows:

10 to 11 A. M.—Congressmen Woodyard, of West Virginia, and Arentz, of Nevada; Colonel R. N. Harper, Cuban claim commissioner; Prince Kekaulenale, attending delegate; Governor Keyes, of New Hampshire; Governor Comeron, of Arizona; Colonel A. M. Bennett, Republican national committeeman from Arizona; Senator Ashurst, of Arizona.

WHISKY STOCKS FOR DISTRIBUTION

Washington, March 9.—Bonded warehouses containing whisky stocks which have been closed for some time, will be opened within the next few days to permit whisky withdrawals by those authorized to do so, it was announced here today. The permissioned class consists mainly of wholesale druggists.

A WOMAN TO DEFEND WOMAN IN MURDER TRIAL

For the first time in the history of the New York courts and probably in the history of the country, a woman lawyer will defend a woman accused of the murder of a woman. The woman attorney is Miss Theresa B. Dubin, of New York City, and her client is Mrs. Donatella Mussiello, of Corona, Long Island, accused of having killed Mrs. Concetta Altieri, a neighbor.

PENETRATE THE RUHR DISTRICT

Allied Patrols Now Surround Three Cities.

ALL GERMANS ORDERED TO SURRENDER ARMS

All Lines of Communication Under Censorship.

German Press Regards Advance of the Allied Armies as a Cancellation of Treaty Obligations of Germany.

Paris, March 9.—The allied military lines were, today, advanced to a point only five miles from Essen. This important German industrial and coal mining city, which is the seat of the gigantic Krupp works, is now within easy range of the allied artillery.

The night passed calmly and without incident in all the three Ruhr district cities taken over by the allies, Tuesday—Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort.

Patrols Established.

Paris, March 9.—The allied troops that advanced on the Rhine sent patrols deeper into the Ruhr district, establishing a line encircling completely the German cities of Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort, which had been occupied, Tuesday.

General Gaucher, who led the French advance into Dusseldorf, issued a proclamation calling upon all Germans, except the police, to surrender all their arms and ammunition within forty-eight hours.

The interallied high commission has established censorship upon the telegraph and telephone lines in all the zones of occupation—both the new and the old—including the small area held by the United States troops at Coblenz. Despatches received from the International News service correspondent with the allied armies, were marked "censored" and were delayed about eight or ten hours, arriving here from Dusseldorf and Neuss.

This censorship will last for eight days and will either be extended or abolished.

Press Views.

Berlin, March 9.—From the Communist organ, Rote Fahne—Red Flag—to the Monarchist newspaper, Deutsche Zeitung, the German press, today, viewed the advance of the allied armies on the Rhine as cancellation of Germany's obligations under the treaty of Versailles.

"The entente has formally begun a new war, having torn up the peace treaty with the mailed fist as though it were a scrap of paper," said Vorwaerts, official organ of the German Socialists.

"The tearing up of the peace treaty is a historical fact," said Rote Fahne.

Vorwaerts compared the military operations of Marshal Foch with the violation of Belgium by the emperor, in 1914.

"The Versailles treaty is torn up and from this moment, all German obligations under the treaty cease," said the Deutsche Zeitung.

A great diplomatic council is to be held here in a few days. The German ambassadors at London, Brussels and Paris have all been ordered to return to Berlin to take part.

Chancellor Fehrenbach, in an address to the Reichstag, said that the advance of the allies brought a solemn hour to Germany, but that "it was impossible to estimate the situation fully, until Dr. Walter Simons, the foreign minister, arrived from Paris."

Appeals Refused.

London, March 9.—The allied supreme council, at a meeting at Premier Lloyd George's house in Mayfair, No. 10 Downing street, this afternoon, approved actions of the German customs houses along the Rhine. It was decided that all funds and equipments in the seized customs depots should be credited to the German reparation fund. After the discussion of economic penalties for Germany, the allied premiers took up the Turko-Greek dispute in the Near East.

GOVERNMENT IS WITHOUT POWER

Can Not Limit Liquor for Non-Beverage Purposes.

SWEEPING DECISION UNDER VOLSTEAD LAW

Permits for Production of Liquors for Non-Beverage Purposes Can Not Be Limited.

Washington, March 9.—A sweeping decision which will liberalize interpretations of the Volstead dry law, was made public by revenue Commissioner Williams today. The decision, which throws into the discard several existing regulations, was the last opinion drawn by A. Mitchell Palmer before retiring as attorney general.

The ruling holds, among other things, that the government has no power under the prohibition law to limit the quantity of liquors of whatever kind, manufactured or sold for non-beverage purposes. It was further declared that certain rules proposed to limit the number of permits for the production of such liquors would, in effect, be an "amendment" to the law itself and are invalid.

Restrictions placed upon doctors authorized to prescribe liquors for patients, were scored by the ruling.

Condition Better.

Athens, March 9.—Further improvement was shown today in the condition of Princess Anastasia, wife of Prince Christopher, who was operated upon, yesterday. Her temperature and pulse were said to be normal. Before her marriage to the Greek prince, the princess was Mrs. William B. Leeds, of New York and Cleveland.

Holding A Husband

BY ADELE GARRISON.

When I awoke Lillian was gone and the sun was streaming into the room beneath my lowered curtains. I looked at my wrist watch in alarm. Half after eight! Lill and's train had been gone an hour. Why had I been allowed to sleep so late?

I rushed through my morning toilet as though I were trying to catch a train, and descended to the dining room in time to greet Edith with a single plate laid at the end of the table. Voices in the kitchen drew me to that room, and there I found Mrs. Durkee and Edith, enveloped in gingham aprons, busily engaged in washing the breakfast dishes.

"Hello, Ladye!" little Mrs. Durkee cried gayly. "How's your neuralgia?"

For an instant I was startled, then I grasped the fact that Lillian must have provided the excuse for my oversleeping, and this had given me the opportunity for a little extra rest.

"All gone," I said nonchalantly. "But you should have awakened me. This is too busy a day to have stragglers for breakfast."

"I can see myself waking you!" little Mrs. Durkee cried indignantly. "I know what neuralgia is, and Lillian said you were awake a long time with it. Besides, I'm not going to get breakfast for you. Your grapefruit is on the table, with the electric toaster and coffee percolator ready to turn on. There's fresh coffee in the percolator, and there are eggs here you can cook in any way you choose. So you see you won't hinder us a bit. This is Liberty Hall, you know."

"I know you're a darling," I said, giving her a little grateful squeeze as I passed. "And I'll hurry, so I won't delay you."

"You won't delay us," Mrs. Durkee said in matter-of-fact tones. "I'll let you wash your own dishes, for just as soon as we finish here, Edith is going to go over the house with a dust cloth and a floor brush for the last touches—everything is all ready except for that—while I'm going to get all the cooking for the dinner, tonight out of the way. Then we'll be free when Lillian comes back at noon with those draperies. And there won't be a thing for you to do until then, so you can just as well go right on over to your own house. What time will Jim and Katie get there?"

"At 10 o'clock," I returned. "But you needn't think I'm going to be put off this way. Surely I can help somewhere this morning."

"Don't be a darned fool just because you know how," Her Fluffiness retorted. "There! I'll compromise. You can finish these dishes with yours when you've eaten your breakfast, then Edith can get at the room right away, and I'll start getting my things together for my pudding. You won't interfere with me a bit."

"That's more like it," I smiled. "And I know Katie will be glad to get lunch for us."

"Yes, I can see her delight," sniffed Her Fluffiness, "with all that mess over there to clean up. And I'll tell you frankly, I couldn't be bothered with her in my kitchen. She'd drive me wild."

I flushed involuntarily and bit my lips to keep from replying in a way equally feline. Even in the days when maids were available, little Mrs. Durkee would never be bothered with one, but I have long known that she cherished a petty jealousy of my success in keeping Katie so long. And she never loses an opportunity to disparage the girl in her mild little fashion.

My reply, when I finally made it, ignored her little speech completely.

"If I don't turn on that percolator," I said, starting for the dining room as if I had just thought of it, "Lillian will be back before I have breakfasted. Of course, she caught her train?"

"By the skin of her teeth, yes," little Mrs. Durkee replied a bit tartly. I think she was slightly disappointed in not getting a rise from me on the subject of Katie. "For once in her life, I saw her lose her deliberation, and actually run for a train. The taxi man disappointed her. But you can't cut the corners the way she does without coming a cropper occasionally. She's going to miss a train some day that will mean a great disappointment to her."

I saw that Her Fluffiness, like many another person who has made a sacrifice of some cherished project, was in the caustic mood of reaction which often follows an ascent to ideal heights. That she would be more or less disagreeable until she had worked off her choler I was sure. So I resolved to keep out of her way as much as possible and smother any rancor her palpable crankiness might arouse in me.

But as I hurried through my breakfast, and afterward finished the kitchen work with the consciousness that Mrs. Durkee's critical eyes were upon me, I thought, a trifle grimly, that if the temper of Her Fluffiness did not improve by nightfall I did not envy Leila her home-coming.

USE IODINE FOR SKIN IRRITATIONS

Pimples and Blemishes Vanish.

If people would only have iodine in the house at all times for a family remedy, they would nip in the bud many serious afflictions and always have an antiseptic and healing remedy for everyday accidents and ailments, says a woman who speaks after many years' experience in raising a large family.

"Take Eczema for instance," she says, "we used to call it St. Anthony's fire when I was young. The red, irritated swollen skin, the itching and burning are maddening, and iodine is the remedy."

Physicians are practically unanimous in recommending iodine. They prefer it in its best form—Lanolated Iodine Compound—which is soothing, healing and powerful, yet never irritates or blisters, and is practically stainless. It is quickly absorbed into the tissues and glands, usually giving prompt relief.

Druggists have this agreeable iodine ointment and gladly recommend it as it gives unusual satisfaction. Be sure to get Lanolated Iodine for best results.—Adv.

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

After hair grewth

On legal affidavit, John Hart Brittain, business man, certified to this: "My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. An expert said that he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth.

"To-day, at an age over 50, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs."

INDIANS' SECRET OF HAIR GROWTH

Mr. Brittain certified further: "At a time when I had become discouraged at trying to grow my hair again, I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian 'medicine man' who had an elixir that he assevereted would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days."

True Hair Grower at Last

"That I was astonished and happy to supplement my words of mine Photo when bald, mildly. Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the then mysterious pomade. I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this, now called KOTALKO, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist. That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved."

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, that is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything one sours in the stomach much as garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy pain in the chest, we belch up sour, acid, eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all pepsin aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and dinner while it is effervescing and drink more, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the fermenting mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Adv.

DANDERINE

SUFFERED AGONIES AFTER EACH MEAL

Stomach filled with gas, bowels constipated. Praises Dreco for relief.

"I couldn't eat many things I wanted, because my digestion was poor and I'd suffer after each meal, but thanks to Dreco that is all over with now," declared Mrs. Lucile May of 99 Market St., Tiffin, Ohio.

Made of the pure extracts of many herbal plants, Dreco combines with the digestive juices of the stomach and quickly promotes a healthy digestion, thereby stopping gas formation, griping and constipation. Dreco is pleasant to take and prompt to act. Sold by all druggists and specially introduced here by Carl G. Ungericht, Marion; Osborn & Son, Prospect.—Adv.

THE TRAITOR

The International Sunday-school Lesson for March 13, 1921. "The Lord's Supper."—Matthew 26:20-30.

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

...service taught chaplains ... not all of which the ... church is heeding. ... a concensus of opinion ... religious observers of both ... American and the British armies ... the past year, especially before ac... and the strength of the Sac... of the Lord's Supper. Most ... were amazed at the eager... of the soldiers for the communion. Many chaplains, who had scant opportunity for preaching provided the sacrament for their flocks ...—and in France there were ... asked as to which ... of the church of Christ a man ... belonged.

During the war one of the foremost Scottish clergy told me ... lessons learned in France ... entirely revolutionize the attitude of the churches of Scotland toward the Lord's Supper. Instead ... or semi-annual communion, they would henceforth provide the "means of grace" more frequently. A fresh understanding had come of the meaning and value of the sacrament to the average man. The churches which offer frequent opportunity to Christians to partake of the Lord's Supper, said my friend, have better understood the deep need of the human heart.

That Upper Room.

This lesson, like the last, links up with a home. It was in the upper room of the house of some unnamed friend of Jesus in Jerusalem that the Last Supper was held. The room had been ceremonially prepared for the occasion, according to the Jewish custom. It was with the great desire that soldiers about to go over the top that the Lord desired to keep this hour with His friends.

For centuries great controversy has raged among the theologians over the significance of the sacrament and views have been championed as different from each other as those of the Quakers, who contend that the communion is wholly spiritual and so disregard the use of bread and wine, to the Catholics, who maintain the doctrine of "transubstantiation," which is that every time the bread and wine is administered by the priest it is actually and literally changed into the physical body and blood of the Savior.

With these points we are not here concerned. Whatever else it was, we are sure that the Last Supper was a feast of fellowship and memory for the heart-hungry Man who craved the loyalty and remembrance of the comrades with whom He had communed over the flower-decked fields of Galilee, and on the lake and amid the cities and towns of Israel. It was in verity a "last supper" together of friends holding a precious, final communion, beneath the shadow of a coming separation.

If the intimacy of friendship was there. Jesus, the leader of the group, was pouring out His heart in self-revelation to those whose understanding and loyalty He coveted; for He was reaching forth for that sympathy which even the stoutest heart craves in his darkest hours. Let us not be so overwhelmed by the majesty and mystery of the Eucharist that we shall miss the present truth that the Divine Redeemer of the world prized the ties which knit His life to His human comrades. Christ craved closeness with His flesh-and-blood disciples, even as He does today. One even dares to wonder what memories the enthroned Christ cherishes today of that sacred upper room.

As the Story Stands.

To recall the familiar story, in modern phrase, let us quote the Weymouth translation of the lesson:

"When evening came, He was at table with the twelve disciples, and the meal was proceeding, when Jesus said,

"'In solemn truth I tell that one of you will betray me.'

"Intensely grieved, they began one after another to ask Him.

"'Can it be I, Master?'

"The one who has dipped his fingers in the bowl with Me,' He answered, 'is the man who will betray Me. The Son of Man is indeed going as it written concerning Him; but alas for that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It had been a happy thing for that man if he had never been born.'

"Then Judas, the disciple who was betraying Him, asked,

"'Can it be I, Rabbi?'

"'It is you,' He replied.

"During the meal Jesus took a passover biscuit, blessed it and broke it. He then gave it to the disciples, saying,

"'Take this and eat it: it is My body.'

"And He took the cup and gave thanks, and gave it to them saying,

"'Drink from it, all of you; for this is my blood which is to be poured out for many for the remission of sins—the blood which ratifies the convenant. I tell you that I will never again take the produce of the vine till that day when I shall drink the new wine with you in my Father's kingdom.'

"So they sang the hymn and went out to the Mount of Olives."

The Traitor at the Table.

All people seem to have a knack of magnifying the hypocrite out of all proportions to his real importance. We sometimes talk about sun-spots as if they really were the sun, and not merely ineffective blemishes upon it. An astronomer told me, the other day, that the chances of our earth's coming into collision with the newly-discovered and incredibly-speeding star bodies were "as one to infinity"—yet some minds are dwelling on the one chance. We have always attached too great importance to the hypocrite in the church, even as to Judas in the picture of the Last Supper.

Judas was at the feast; but he was not the feast. The real meaning of the great night was not the presence of the traitor. Eliminate all allusion to the money-loving renegade whose cupidity had broken down all the finer qualities of his manhood, and we still have one of the high hours of Christ's life, and one of His greatest bequests to the world. Although treason, and other baser passions, were present at the holy place, we prefer to dwell upon the love loyalty that were also there, in far greater force. Judas was there, but eleven true friends were there, too.

Chiefly valuable to us, as we behold Judas, is the question which he forces us to ask ourselves, "Is it I?" Every Christian is a possible traitor to His Lord. The best of saints may fall into the offense of this worst of sinners. Everybody who deals frankly with his soul knows that in him is the capacity to deny Christ, both by word and by deed. Daily we must ask ourselves, as the tug of things draws us away from close fellowship with "Him whom having not seen we love," whether we are disloyal to the Master who died for us and to whose glory our life is pledged. Pause with me for an instant, and ask the Judas question, "Lord, is it I?"

The Symbolism of the Sacrifice

The things that men live by are not the things that are inadequate on Wall street. Unrequited love, domestic unhappiness, the illness of a dear one, spiritual concern or intellectual fortune. Everybody's real life is lived in the spirit. More or less consciously, according to spiritual development, man's well-being is a thing within himself, and measurably independent of circumstances. It is easy to deceive ourselves into believing that our world is engrossed in follies and fashions and in the things of sense. Nevertheless, the quest for spiritual satisfaction, the hunger of God, is deep and universal today.

To feed this yearning was one of the reasons why Jesus established the Lord's Supper. He gave Himself to a world that could finally be content with nothing less. It has been the experience of rich and poor, learned and unlettered, in all the Christian centuries, that they have counted all as nothing if only they might feed upon Christ. As sang an unknown poet of the eleventh century:

"From the best bliss that earth imparts,
We turn unfilled to Thee again.

* * * * *

"We taste Thee, O Thou living Bread,
And long to feast upon Thee still;
We drink of Thee, the Fountainhead,
And thirst our souls from Thee to fill."

We bow in the presence of a mystery, as we look upon the scene in the upper room. We can not understand why or how; but we know that, as He promised, Christ Himself is the strength and sustenance of His friends. His very life, as He symbolized, is imparted to all who would feast on Him. The Quaker mystic and the Catholic monk, and countless types of Christians between, find the same living Christ to be the bread and wine of their spirits' life. The mystery remains a mystery—but none the less a present reality. Bishop Heber gathered the significance of the sacrament into a few pregnant words:

"Bread of the world in mercy broken,
Wine of the soul in mercy shed,
By Whom the words of life were spoken,
And in whose death our sins are dead;

"Look on the heart by sorrow broken,
Look on the tears by sinners shed;
And be Thy feast to us the token
That by Thy grace our souls are fed."

A Three-Way Fingerboard.

This supper in the Jerusalem Upper Room whereat the Jewish Passover developed into a greater feast, of fuller symbolism, is one which art and literature and philosophy have long tried in vain to express. It is a three-story fingerboard, pointing backward to the historical Jesus, seeking to be held in remembrance by His friends; forward, to the kingdom wherein the Lord will drink the "new wine" with His friends—so new that "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

That triumphant forward look may not be omitted from any consideration, however superficial, of the Last Supper. This was no mere farewell reunion of a group of comrades, beaten by fate, who were to separate, never to be reunited. The Master's words were no requiem of a lost cause. Far, far from it. The feast ended in a song,—we commonly forget the singing Christ, singing in the shadow of Gethsemane and Calvary, and it looked forward in a triumphant reunion. The Supper was a token of the tryst that was to come. Every time we fulfill the Master's commandment to partake of the communion, we give pledge of the sure day when we shall feast with Him in a victorious kingdom.

Is Backache Making You Miserable?

Are you dull, tired and achy—bothered with a bad back? Do you lack ambition; suffer headaches and dizziness—feel "all worn out?" Likely your kidneys are to blame. Lameness, sharp, stabbing pains, backache and annoying urinary disorders are all symptoms of weakened kidneys. Don't wait for more serious trouble. Get back your health and keep it! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Home folks tell their merit. Ask your neighbor!

Here's a Marion Case.

My kidneys didn't act right and the secretions were highly colored. I had dizzy spells and pains in my head. I used Doan's Kidney Pills from Strayer Bros.' Drug Store and was cured."—Adv.

MR. GROVER MOREHART POPULAR MARION BAKER SAYS HE IS HAPPY BECAUSE HE FEELS GOOD.

HAD STOMACH TROUBLE, VERY NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN SYSTEM

My Stomach Was in a Very Bad Condition, Weak, Nervous and Worn Out.—Feeling Good Again.

I am now on my second bottle of Nuxlie and have improved more than I thought was possible, declares Mr. Grover Morehart, baker by trade, living at 121 Pearl St., Marion. Nuxlie has helped him so he could not talk to his friends or anyone but a few minutes without telling them something about it. The time I got Nuxlie I had been bloating and gas would form, my appetite was very poor, I did not sleep very well at night, had that tired, worn out and sluggish feeling all the time. I am getting in good shape now. I sleep sound every night. My appetite is good, don't have that tired, worn out feeling, have more energy and ambition to work. Most of the so-called stomach, kidney and liver troubles are due almost entirely to catarrhal inflammation of those organs, dull, sneezing, watery eyes, pains in the pit of the stomach, kidney regions, constant coughing up of mucus, lost appetite, no ambition, depressing of spirits, persistent contracting of colds and symptoms so many people suffer. Mr. Morehart says Nuxlie has given him entire satisfaction, and is glad to recommend it to anyone. The Nuxlie Mr. Morehart refers to is being explained at Schmidt's drug store by W. R. Cooper, and may be obtained at Kyles drug store Richwood, Ohio.—Adv.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BOBBIE RINGTAIL.

(BY HOWARD R. GARIS.)
(Copyright 1921, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Are you going to be very busy for snags, one for butter, one for eggs, a fifth for crackers and a sixth for cheese.

"Now you won't forget," said Nurse Jane, as Uncle Wiggily hopped away, the strings dangling like the tails of kites and dressed up for the moving pictures.

"No, I think I'll remember," said the bunny. "First I'll have an adventure and then I'll look at the strings and remember the things I'm to get at the grocery store."

The funny gentleman hopped on

"Now I can't remember a blessed thing."

and on, over the fields and through the woods, where the last patches of winter snow lay in shady places. Spring would soon come to Animal Land, Uncle Wiggily hoped.

All of a sudden, as the bunny gentleman was thinking he would have no adventure that day, he heard a voice saying:

"Oh, dear! Isn't it too bad! I've lost my string and I can't spin it!"

"Spin what?" asked Uncle Wiggily before he thought.

"My top," answered a voice, and there stood Bobbie Ringtail, the raccoon boy, all dressed in fur. "I bought a new top," he said, "but I lost the string I had to wind around it to make it spin. Oh, you've got some string, Uncle Wiggily!" cried the raccoon boy, as he saw the strings dangling from the bunny's paws.

"Of course I have! Take them!" said Mr. Longears. And then, forgetting all about why Nurse Jane had tied the strings on him, as well as forgetting the things he was to get at the store, Uncle Wiggily gave the cords to Bobbie.

The raccoon chap tied them together and soon was spinning his top. And then all of a sudden as Uncle Wiggily watched the top spinning around, he happened to think of what Nurse Jane had told him.

"Oh, dear!" sadly cried the bunny gentleman.

"What's the matter?" asked Bobbie.

"Oh, I had some rings of string tied on my paws to remember things from the store," said Mr. Longears.

"And you took them off to make me a cord for my top, is that it?" asked Bobbie.

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily, "it is, and now I can't remember a blessed thing! Oh, if only I had the rings of string back!"

"Wait a minute!" cried Bobbie. "I have rings of fur on my tail, Uncle Wiggily. All raccoons have. Maybe if you look at the rings on my tail you'll remember."

"Oh, maybe I will!" cried the bunny. So he looked as hard as he could at the first ring on Bobbie's tail, and he remembered "salt." The second ring reminded him he was to get sugar and the third ring brought butter to his mind.

"Hurray!" cried the bunny gentleman. "I remember it all, Bobbie! Come along to the store with me so I'll have your tail rings to look at and won't forget again."

So Bobbie went along and Mr. Longears bought everything Nurse Jane needed at the grocery; all because of the rings on the raccoon boy's tail!

TIRE INSPECTOR GETS RESULTS

Akron Man Says He Is Certainly Thankful for What Tanlac Has Done for Him.

The gratifying results being obtained from Tanlac is further evidenced in the case of L. L. Chapman, of 64 south 26th street, Kenmore, Ohio, well-known inspector at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company's plant No. 1, Akron. Here is what he says:

"When a man is hungry and is afraid to sit down and eat a good meal on account of having to suffer from indigestion and stomach trouble, he is in a pretty bad fix, and that just hits the nail on the head in my case before I got Tanlac. Nothing I ate agreed with me and I would bloat until I could hardly breathe. I felt as tired on getting up mornings as I did when I went to bed the night before and was losing weight and strength every day.

"A friend got me to try Tanlac, and although I've just taken one bottle so far my food seems to agree with me, for my stomach no longer troubles me. I'm rapidly regaining my weight and strength, too, and am going to take Tanlac a while longer until it builds me up and puts me in the very best of health. I don't believe it can be beat anywhere, and am certainly thankful for what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Marion by The Dumble Pharmacy, in LaRue by Sifritt's Pharmacy and in Waldo by Apt Pharmacy.—Adv.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James E. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. Carl G. Yungericht's Drug Store has been appointed agent for Allenrhu in this vicinity with the understanding that he will freely return the purchase money to all who state they received no benefit.—Adv.

Dublin, Va.—Miss Mary Alice Hughett residing on Route 2, near here, recently told a visitor of her interesting experience with Cardui. Miss Hughett said: "I had been suffering for some time with painful . . . I was pale, didn't feel like going. Would just drag around, and couldn't rest to do any good. I would suffer once a month with my back, sides and head. My limbs would ache and I didn't know what to do, but I knew I must do something, for I didn't get well by letting it run on.

"My mother is a believer in Cardui, for she saw what it had done for others as well as herself, so she began giving it to me.

"It wasn't long before I saw a change. It was just what I needed. It regulated me. I went to eat and sleep, and the pain ceased.

"Cardui is without doubt the best female tonic made, and I am glad I can recommend it to others."

If suffering with symptoms such as Miss Hughett mentions, or other ailments peculiar to women, why not begin Cardui at once? Its merit is well established by successful use for more than 40 years.

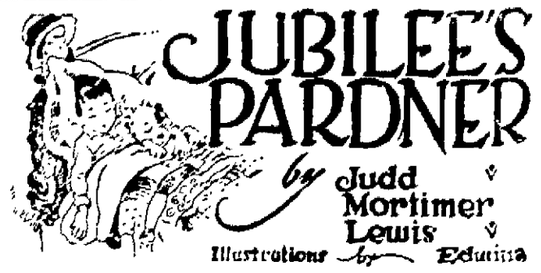
JUBILEE'S PARDNER



by Judd Mortimer Lewis

I did not want to get up this morning and I let Johnnie down out of the window by the rope in his pants and then I got back in bed and the next thing I knowed my mother called me twice and then my father called me once, and when he called me I thought I might as well get up, and I did and everybody was up and it was daylight and my mother asked me didn't I feel well, and I said I did, an then my grandfather said that I had spring fever and I better take some castor oil and my father said the next time I had to be called three times I would take some strap oil.

And then my mother said to let me alone because Younies and her mother kept me up late last night, so I took the pail and went out and milked and my father and unkle had went to work and everybody but me had et breakfast when I come in. I asted my mother if anything wich for on it laid eggs and she said it didn't. I am kinda sorry because I would like to hatch out a coconut. I asted her where baboons come from and she said they come from Africa. I do not blame them.

A little kid that lives down on Taylor street brung a kite to school with him, and at recess he let one run with it, and I was looking back to see if it was going up and so was Jubilee and I fell over him. When I fell Maggie, the mut which got fascinated on her leg so it would not show, clapped her hands and that made Younies so mad that she made a snoot at her, and then she wanted me to use her handkerchief to wipe my nose on, but I would not do it. When we went in Jonesy said that I ought to let my ears get well before I busted my nose, but I guess it is my nose.

We were going to go to our hut and make some kites when school let out, but my mother had us help red the kitchen and when we got in to get some new paper and she come out and found a the kitchen and got mad be

we had not wiped our feet and run us all outdoors, and I said I guessed a little boy ought to be brung up out in the barn with the other dummed animals, and instead of saying she was sorry she had talked to me and my friends like she did she said she thought that was

I got also and if she had any new toys that is where she would bring them up.

She ain't going to bring no brother of mine up in no barn and I'll be, her that next time or I would if she would get me. When I went to bed I crawl out of the window and met the rain and me went to the wrigley factory and sot in the office with night watchman and he told us not to leave till we did not want to go home and he did not want us to. I do not know why anyone has to have a night watchman at the wrigley factory. I do or think any one would want to steal anything from it. A detective could find them too easy if they did.

Experienced Mothers know the wisdom of assisting nature before Baby's coming

IT is natural to think of the expectant mother's influence upon the unborn babe. Her food, her habits, her hygiene, and even the condition of her mind, all have a part in determining the well-being or ill-being of her infant before birth.

No woman awaiting the joys of coming motherhood should allow the days to pass without giving nature a helping hand—because the conditions of pending motherhood, existing as they do, over a protracted period of months, create almost a new state of being for a woman.

Just as she prepares herself for it, so will most favorable conditions prevail when her child is born.
